BENJAMIN LETT MONUMENT

On four sides of the tall Benjamin Lett monument are nearly illegible inscriptions about him, parts of which follow. He was accused of blowing up a British ship on which he came to America.

Who was pursued for more than twenty years by the most powerful political party upon Earth. And they had to stoop to perjury and poison to accomplish his destruction. He was a true disciple of brains (?) whose generosity surpassed his courage.

England had not money enough to hire any of her cutthroats to face him and shoot him down.

The judges and the witnesses of Jesible would have shuddered and shrunk back in horror from the acts that Lett's destroyers stooped to. The authorities of New York commited three crimes against him (Lett) that has no parallel in fact or fiction. It will seem by the testimony of Dufoe, the chief witness, the man who swore that he himself had committed the alleged crime but that Lett had told him to do it, producing no proof tending in any wise to such______. And he______in open court identified a piece of a match which he say was the very match Lett had placed in the trunk. Altho all the witnesses agree as to the fact that there was an explosion. The explosion must have been caused by the match which match must have been consumed before any fire could have been comm-----? to the contents of the jug without which combination of fire there could not possibly have been any explosion. Again the witness Pandee_____ ___piece of a jug which was produced in court as being a piece of one of the jugs in the trunk while New ? Kirk and Pardee both agree thru (?) the boat was on fire when all the other witnesses of the prosecution swore to the contrary but it was left for Dr. Holden to put a finish to this truly astonishing testimony and at the same time gave him an honorable opportunity of displaying his own ignorance when he swore that he had analyzed the contents of the trunk after those contents had exploded.

The Hon. faced Webster, the god-like Daniel was the Secretary of State but he trambled like a dog in a wet sack at the frown of Mr. Fox, the haughty English ambassador, when he told him McLeod was acting under a superior officer. But Oh! Heavens he was ferocious when let loose upon the Nigger Wench whom he had bound hand and footh with heavier chains than ever Carberus has his prisoners bound at Hell gate,

Near this monument is a broken slab, now flat, about 4 ft. by 5 ft. with inscriptions, mostly illegible, about this case. Excerpts are as follows:

There are a few other things in regard to this case that should be known the Captain & Mate of the vessel on which Mr. Lett came here & pressed their confident belief that he was poisoned and they doubted not by whom The Captain stated that on going into the state room he fpoud the man whom he suspected attempting to administer nourishment to Mr. Lett who severingly refused the cause of his refusel he brought him nourishment which he readily took. After arriving here he made evident efforts to answer questions by hodding his head or shaking it He was asked if he believe that he had been poisoned A prompt not of the head two or three times repeated, was the significant answer.

Milwaukee Sentinel Dec 15 1858
If the decision of the court in the case of Lett was lawful a man having two enemies might shoot one and turn State's Evidence & swear the other told him to do so, & destroy both in one day and by adding perjury to murder, escape impunity as Dafoe did Speak Idgo's Speak & prove the villian a ham?

Thos. Lett.

Renarks of T. Sickle the Artist. Lett brother falls upon them like a hurricane upon the Ocean lashes them into fury and dares them to leap the bounds. He brings them to the light and showes them to the people.

COL. WILLIAM ROSS,

Of Pittsfield, Illinois.

Was born April 24th, 1792, in the town of Monson, Hampden County, Mass., where he resided till the age of thirteen. His father, Micah Ross, moved to Pittsfield, Mass. in 1805. Upon the declaration of war in 1812, William Ross obtained a commission as Ensign in the 21st Regt. U.S.Infantry, commanded by Col. E. W. Ripley, and was soon after ordered on recruiting service. In the spring of 1813 he was directed to unite his men with those of his brother, Capt. Leonard Ross, of the same regiment, at Greenbush, N.Y., and was subsequently despatched to join the command of Major Aspinwall, about five hundred infantry of the 9th Regt., who had been ordered to take up a forced march for Buffalo, then threatened by the enemy forces. Arrived at Utica, the troops were met by an Express, informing them of the capture and destruction of Buffalo, and directing their immediate march to Sacketts Harbour. Accordingly, proceeding to Oswego, on Lake Ontario, they embarked in fifty open row boats, and set out for the harbor; but hardly had they made Stoney Island than they heard the roar of cannon, and discovered the British fleet with gun boats and Indian canoes in the rear. They at once attempted to run the gauntlet of the enemy's armed vessels, and rushing amid the fire of the gun-boats, twenty five of their own frail craft succeeded in reaching the harbor, the remainder being captured by the British. Capt. Ross and the young Ensign, were among the successful ones.

The next day, the 29th of May, 1813, took place the memorable battle of Sackett's Harbor, in which the brothers led about one hundred men, and in which five hundred Americans drove back thirteen hundred British soldiers. Of the detachment commanded by the Rosses, one third was either killed or wounded in the conflict. Where every officer and soldier was brave and determined, it was not necessary to distinguish; suffice it, that William Ross was at his proper post, encouraging his men, and rendering valuable service in defense of the harbor.

Soon after this battle, the Rosses were transferred into the 40th Regt. Infantry, and ordered to the seaboard, where the Captain took command of Fort Warren in Boston Harbor, and William Ross was detached to Marblehead, to drill the troops of that post, and subsequently removed to the Gurnet Fort, near Plymouth, Mass., where he remained till the close of the war. He then returned to Pittsfield, and set up the business of a blacksmith, hiring workmen, however, as he possessed no knowledge of the trade himself. The business carried on for several years, during which time he was elected constable of the town, and discharged the duties of that office with an energy and punctuality that won the esteem of his fellow citizens.

In the summer of 1820, in company with four brothers, and a few other families, he started for what was then known as the Far West, the State of Illinois, on the Mississippi Bottom. They arrived safely at the headwaters of the alleghany river, and there procuring boats for their families, horses, and wagons, set out to descend the stream, then in a very low stage of water. Difficulties here began to assail the little band. Again and again their boats ran aground, rendering it necessary for the sturdy emigrants to rush into the water, and wield their pries and levers with a will. However they were not to be disheartened, but by dint of perseverance succeeded in reaching Pittsburg, after fourteen days of unremitting exertion. Here they entered upon the broad and beautiful Ohio, which bore them pleasantly upon its ample bosom, permitting them to review at leisure the toils and sufferings endured upon the Alleghany.

In a few weeks they arrived at Shawneetown, situated above the mouth of the Ohio, in Illinois, at which point they took leave of their water palaces, and started with wagons and teams for their place of destination, near the Mississippi river. At Upper Alton, which they reached in due season, there was but one house, where a city now stands. It was occupied by Major Hunter, and here the company secured quarters for their families, while they went in search of their intended location.

At the mouth of the Illinois river they came across an Indian camp, where they procured two canoes, split puncheons of plank and laid across them, and then safely ferried over their wagons. The horses were made to swim alongside of the canoes. They then crossed the Bluff, and proceeded to the Mississippi Bottom, at the point where Gilead (in Calhoun Co.) is now situated; then continued up the Bottom, marking the trees as they went, for there were no roads, and nothing to guide them but an occasional Indian trail. At length they arrived in Township 6 south, 5 west, about six miles east of the Mississippi, in the tract appropriated for military counties. This beautiful prairie land charmed the emigrants, and they at once set to work their energies and constructed a camp to shelter themselves while preparing quarters for their families. No time was lost in throwing up four rought log-cabins, intended to form the immediate settlement; for there were not more than five white men within fifty miles of this location, east of the river, All being prepared, the pioneers returned for their families, and shortly after took permanent possession of their habitations.

At this time the Legislature was in session at Vandalia, and learning of the location of these emigrants, they took measures to lay off and form the county of Pike, embracing all the territory north and west of the Illinois river, including what is now known as the cities of Chicago, Peoria, and Galena. At the first election held in the vast territory there were but thirty-five votes polled, including those of the French at Chicago. Since then more than fifty counties have been created out of it, and over fifty thousand votes are now cast, while the population continues to increase rapidly every year.

For a while the prospects of our settlers were very flattering, but afterwards sickness and death entered their ranks. Col. Ross lost his first wife, one brother, and several of the company the first year. Subsequently the Colonel visited New York and married a Miss Adams of that state, after which he returned to Illinois, laid out a town embracing his first location, and named it Atlas. There had previously been established a Post-office, called Ross settlement, but this designation gave way to the one now adopted by the Colonel, who soon commenced improving a farm, and built a mill, which was needed at that time. His efforts were followed by the blessings of a kind Providence; and though he arrived in Illinois a poor man, he speedly, through economy and untiring energy, began to realize an increase in property and notoriety. He became Judge of Probate for the County of Pike, which office he held for many years, enjoying the unbounded confidence of the people. He also served as clerk of the circuit and county courts, and filled with credit many minor offices, among which were Colonel of Militia and Justice of the Peace; in all of which he won the esteem of his fellow citizens.

In April 1832, at the commencement of the Black Hawk war, Col. Ross was ordered by the Governor to raise a company out of his regiment forthwith, and join the forces at Bardstown. He received thr order on Friday, and the following Tuesday presented himself at the rendevous in Bardstown, with double the number of men designated in the requistion. He was selected as aid to the Commanding General, served with much popularity throughout the campaign, and then returned once more to private life, devoring himself to building operations and the improvement of the country where he resided. Prosperity still smiled upon his every effort. In 1835 he was elected to the Legislature of Illinois, and while a member of this body procured the passage of a law peculiarly adapted to the Military Tract, which afterwards proved of great importance to that section of the country. Col. Ross was subsequently chosen to the Senate several terms, serving five or six sessions in that body, in one of which, during the illness of the Lieut. Governor, he was selected and served as speaker pro-tem, giving great satisfaction to the senators by his prompt method of dispatching the public business.

Col. Ross has two sons and two daughters, whose education is receiving his closest attention. Himself and wife are members of the First Congregational Church in Pittsfield, Ill., where he now resides, and where a fine meeting-house, supplied with a good bell, now ornaments the square - a standing momento of his generosity as the donor. Retired from an unusually active business life, and dwelling upon his farm, about one mile East of the town, surrounded by the smiles of his family, we trust he will long enjoy the fruits of his honest industry and enterprise.

A PRELIMINARY OUTLINE OF THE STEENROD FAMILY

(Prepared by Robert L. Steenrod, R. Ph., Chicago, Ill. 1958)

Emerging from obscurity about 1735 in the vicinity of North Salem, Westchester County, New York, the Steenrod family is a distinctive example of the early migration of a Scandinavian family to the American Colonies. The name had it's origin in the vicinity of Oslo, Norway, by the fifteenth century, and in it's spelling varied from Staeinraudarson in 1419 to Steenrodsen in 1461. These and other instances establish the development of the name. Certainly it flourished in the Old World long after our particular group came to this side of the Ocean, for several persons surnamed Stenrod came to the United States during the great Scandinavian Migration of the middle nineteenth century.

The meaning of the name is two-fold in possible interpretation. The first syllable is recognizable as referring to 'stone' while the last has two possible meanings. As -hrod it may refer to 'integrity', or as -raud it may mean a 'glen' or 'clearing'. It may also be noted that Sten or Stein has been used as a given name. From the inferences it can be determined that the name means either 'a person of strength and integrity' or might be taken from the Norwegian version of a place-name as 'Stein's Clearing'.

Exactly when the family arrived in America is yet unproven. There remains to be substantiated the family tradition that the first of the name here came as a sailor aboard one of the ships carrying Peter Stuyvesant to New Amsterdam in 1646, our ancestor's family being political prisoners in Holland, he being taken from prison and placed directly in the crew of the ship. After being settled in New Amsterdam, our people were said to have fled to Westchester County for safety when the English took over the Colony in 1664. There is a strong possibility the family leased land in Cortland Manor in that County for many years for only Cornelius Steenrod is mentioned in any of the existing lists of Freeholders of the County, and he no earlier than 1779. Evidence to support this is not available since the Rent Rolls of this Manor have been missing since the 1880's. Indeed, Cornelius Steenrod is the only one of the name who ever owned land in Westchester County.

The scarcity of records prevents an exact interpretation of the relationship between the earliest known members of the family in Westchester County. They are presented here in an order which attempts to minimize this difficulty.

First Generation

1. EDWARD STENROD served as a private in the Seventh Company of Militia in the Upper Battalion of Westchester County, New York, under Col. William Willett, Lt. Col. James Verplanck, Maj. Pierre Van Cortlandt, and Capt. Joshua Lobdell, sometime in 1760. He is now assumed to have been the father of: Elizabeth, Amy, Mary, and Solomon.

2. CAPT. CORNELIUS STEENROD, born by 1737, as his daughter, Phebe, was born in 1757, and he was certainly of age by February 18, 1764, when he was granted letters of Administration on the Estate of his 'cousin' John Moore, deceased, late of Westchester County, New York. He died about December, 1795, in Ohio Co., Virginia, as his widow, Amy, was appointed Administratrix of his Estate on Jan. 2, 1796, with Ephraim Lockwood as her security.

Early Generations

II. [illegible]

Cornelius married first by 1756 to Mary Elizabeth Caldwell, who died about 1792, after the birth of her son Lewis in June, 1791. He married second at that time to Amy ____________, who was born in 1743 and died between April and August, 1827, and is buried in old Stone Church Cemetery at Wheeling. After Cornelius died, Amy remarried on March 23, 1799, in Ohio County, Virginia, to James Brown, a widower. James Brown was born by 1760 in Massachusetts and settled first in either Washington Co., Pa, or Waterford, Washington Co., Ohio. On his remarriage, James became the first settler in Perry Township, Muskingum County, Ohio, where he built the first tavern there, and died in 1815-1816.

While residing in North Salem, Cornelius Steenrod became the only member of the family to be mentioned in the Westchester County, New York Land Records, having purchased, mortgaged, and sold various pieces of land there from 1773 to 1779. Among this property was a millsite. The dam is still intact and the present owner of the property built and resides in a house upon the foundation of the old mill itself.

During the Revolutionary War, Cornelius served as a Captain, from 1775 to 1782, both in the County Militia and as a Minute Man. His earliest service is verified by the Pension Record of Ebenezer Steenrod, who declared that in the Fall of 1775 he enlisted for six months in the Company commanded by Capt. Cornelius Steenrod, under Col. Strang, and that he assisted in erecting Fort Minute, near the Hurlgate and Long Island Sound.

The date of his removal from Westchester County is indicated by a lawsuit in the Westchester County Court of General Sessions, instituted against Cornelius Steenrod (though this may have been his son Cornelius, Jr.) on Nov. 9, 1781, for assault and battery upon one Abraham Leggett, and continued from session to session until it's last mention on January 28, 1790. No mention of the case is made at the following session, May 29, 1790, or thereafter, nor is there any listing of his family there in the Federal Census of 1790, showing that the family removed to Ohio County, Virginia, between January and May, 1790. Cornelius was in Virginia by June, 1791, when his son Lewis was born there, in a Blockhouse at Fort Henry (now Wheeling) during an Indian uprising. In 1792, Cornelius Steenrod, Sr., had several thousand acres of land surveyed in Ohio County, Virginia. He seems to have been buried somewhere on Fish Creek, now in Marshall County, West Virginia. His children include: Phebe, Cornelius Jr., Edward, Briggs, Susan, Daniel, and Lewis.

3. EBENEZER STEENROD, born in 1744 in Salem, Westchester County, New York, died in 1836 in Friendship, Allegany County, New York. He was married on December 2, 1765, in the Church of Christ, Salem (now the Presbyterian Church of Lewisboro, formerly South Salem) Westchester County, New York, by the Rev. Solomon Mead, to Phebe Slocum. He was a Revolutionary War Pensioner (see National Archives Pension File S 14583, under the Act of June 7, 1832) and enlisted from Salem in the Fall of 1775 for six months, as stated previously. Then he was in Capt. Samuel Delevan's Company of Rangers for six months from April, 1776; later he was a Minute Man in 1778; and finally he hired a man to serve for him for three years in Continental Army service. Between 1790 and 1800, he moved from Salem to Middletown, Delaware County, New York. About 1818, he removed to Friendship, New York, apparently to live with his son, Ebenezer Jr. His children include: Ebenezer Jr., Edward, John, and three untraced daughters.

Second Generation

1-1. ELIZABETH STEENROD, born about 1750, married on December 19, 1771, Church of Christ, Salem New York, to Simeon Fuller. He was a Revolutionary War Soldier.

He was born in 1754 in Kakiat (now Ramapo) Rockland Co., New York, and died July 4, 1833, in Fallsburgh, Sullivan Co., New York, or in North Moreland Township, Luzerne County (now in Wyoming County) Pennsylvania. He was a Revolutionary War Pensioner, and enlisted from Salem, New York. He was pensioned while living in Fallsburgh, Sullivan County, New York. Their children include: Elizabeth, John, Nehemiah, and Edward.

In 1790 he had lived in Frederickstown (which later became South East Township, now in Putnam County, which is given as the birthplace of his son Stephen in August, 1789) Dutchess County, New York. His wife, name unknown, was born about 1765. He was a private in the Westchester County, New York Militia in the Revolution, about 1779-81. His children include:Stephen, Phebe, two other daughters, and Solomon Jr.

2-1. PHEBE STEENROD, born in 1757, died December 11, 1849, near Lake Mahopac, Carmel Township, Putnam County, New York, married July 17, 1785, White Plains, New York, to Benjamin Griffin (2nd ?) born in 1747, died May 20, 1825 near Lake Mahopac, New York. He was a private in the New York Continental Line in the Revolutionary War, and pensioned by the Act of March 18, 1818, his widow later receiving the Pension (File W 23150). Their children include: John, Matilda, and others.

2-2. CORNELIUS STEENROD, JR. - born about 1760, living July 12, 1817, near Wheeling, Virginia. He was a private in the Westchester Co. Militia in the Revolution, about 1778-80. He married (2nd ?) by 1805 to Abigail Lockwood, born about 1784, a daughter of Ephraim and Susannah (Lockwood) Lockwood of North Salem, New York, and Ohio County, Virginia, and a half-sister of Rachel (Lockwood) Steenrod, below. His children include: Ephraim, and at least two other sons.

2-3 - EDWARD STEENROD - nothing more known

2-4 - BRIGGS STEENROD, born about 1770, living 1820 Ohio County, Virginia. Their children include: Lockwood, Daniel, David, and one other son.

2-5 SUSAN STEENROD - born about 1780, died 1820-24 Perry Township, Muskingum Co., Ohio. He removed from Virginia to Ohio in 1804. Their children include: Elizabeth, Daniel, Lewis, Sarah Ann, David Elisha, Amy, and John.

2-6 DANIEL STEENROD - born June 22, 1784, in Dutchess County, New York, died April 28, 1864, in Wheeling, West Virginia, buried in Stone Church Cemetery there. He contracted for the building of the National Road west of the Pennsylvania State line, built, owned, and operated for many years a tavern on the south side of the Road, just east of Wheeling, and for the remainder of his life was a wealthy landowner in that vicinity. He married first, by 1806, to Nancy Ann Gater, born 1785, died 1823, a daughter of Edward and Nancy Gater of Wheeling, she being the mother of all Daniel's children. He married second on March 29, 1825, in Brooke County, Virginia, to Nancy McClure, born in 1788, died 1860, in Wheeling, Virginia. His children were: Edward Gater, Lewis, George W., Sophia, Elizabeth, Catherine, Amy (Emma) B(rown), and Noah Zane.

2-7. LEWIS STEENROD - born June, 1791, in a blockhouse at Fort Henry (now Wheeling) Ohio County, Virginia, died December 10, 1860, in Nelsonville, York Township, Athens County, Ohio. He moved to Muskingum Co., Ohio, in 1805, and resided in Perry Township until 1850, when he removed to Nelsonville. He married on March 22, 1811, in Muskingum Co. Ohio, to Phebe Horton, born in 1792 in New York State, died Dec. 18, 1852, in Nelsonville. He was a Sergeant in the War of 1812, and later had a Bounty-Land Grant for his service. He was a farmer and trader. In 1812, he became a Baptist, probably in the nearby Salt Creek Baptist Church. His children include: Daniel, Cornelius, George, Amos, Lewis Jr., and Alpha.

3-1 EBENEZER STEENROD JR. born in 1770 in Salem, Westchester County, New York, died 1832-40 Friendship, Allegany County, New York. His wife, name unknown, was born about 1775, alive in 1830.
